Fund objective

The fund aims to outperform the FTSE All Share Index by 2% per year (after charges) over rolling 5-year periods. It does so by investing at least 80% in the shares of UK companies of any size and in any sector. The fund will typically hold between 30 to 50 stocks. The Aegon fund has higher charges than the underlying Baillie Gifford fund and will therefore be less likely to meet this target.

Risk Rating Profile

Volatility risk

This is the risk that your investments may change in value (up and down). This can happen with all equity, bond and even cash funds. The younger you are, the less worried you might be about short-term ups and downs. Instead it is important to think of the long-term prospects for investment growth. You might expect to get a higher return for a higher risk investment.

Inflation risk

This is the risk that your investments won't grow as quickly as inflation (the increase in the cost of living). This can happen with "low risk" funds, such as a cash fund. So even though volatility is low, by underperforming inflation it may be a poor long term investment.

Pension conversion risk

When you retire, you'll be faced with the option of what to do with your accumulated pension pot. Historically, members used the majority of their pension pot to buy an annuity. An annuity is a contract between the member and an insurance provider so that the member receives regular income which is either level or increasing. However we expect to see more members using the flexibility proposed by the 2014 budget. For members buying an annuity for example, the cost of buying an annuity moves over time, however the cost broadly moves in line with the price of bonds. By switching your investments into a fund that invests in bonds when you're closer to retirement, you can help to protect them against the risk of the price of the annuity changing.

Past performance should not be seen as an indication of future performance.

These figures have been calculated using actual returns since the introduction of the current fund range.

It is important to remember that the price of units can go down as well as up and is not guaranteed and that you may not get back the amount originally invested. Changes in rates of currency exchange, particularly where overseas securities are held, may also affect the value of your investment. Unless otherwise stated, all fund information is as at 30 June 2022.

This factsheet is for information only. The investment options you choose for your pension account will affect the size of your fund. Also, the degree of risk you wish to take will affect the investments you choose.
